HE largest independent general merchandise store on Kauai. We take an immense amount of pride in this plain, solid statement. There is not a man on Kauai who does not know that when he buys anything at one of our stores the goods are going to be exactly as represented and the price a little lower than he can get anywhere else, and he knows, too, that he is going to get a square deal.

Grocery Department

LET IT BE KNOWN

That Riley the biscuit man is the largest drummer on the road

That every one who has met Riley is aware that we are judging him by avoirdupois.

That he is also the most polite of all drummers.

That on the last trip to shore in one of the shore boats, Riley seeing the boat was crowded gallantly gave up his seat to two ladies.

That Charley Herrick would do the same if it was possible.

That Gus Prescott wanted damages from this newspaper for injury to his reputation by the publication of a poem in the last "Drummers' Edition."

That he called on council and was told he had no case as no one ead the paper.

That McClanahan is no longer with Gunst & Co.

That he is now drumming for H. H. & Co's., liquor department.

That he carries his samples well. That when last seen he was just full of his business. That one other drummer wa aken for a liquor drummer recent-

That his appearance was awfully deceiving, he being a dry goods

That all the boys that have been asked if it was he, deny it.

That they have all been asked but one.

That it would be a waste of time to ask Sid Spitzer.

That Frost says he had a delightful trip on Hawaii last month.

should be no jealousy. That Tommy O'Brien played paseball in Honokaa recently. That he is some baseball pitcher. That Obak Kelly wants Tommy's photo for a cigarette picture. That Kelly believes a good many young ladies would then cultivate the cigarette habit.

That one of the boys while putting up what he thought was a keeper, to hire a hall.

That if that kind of noise was nusic, he would be in grand opera. That Editor Bridgewater says advertising pays.

That he should then advertise his paper in a real newspaper.

That it is a sure wager he will discontinue to publish the "Drummers' Edition.'

That Jack Bergstrom when at the bowling alley, learnt German

That he understood after having heard it said once (Ich werde ein glass bier haben.)

That when bowling, he forgot to let go of the ball and started to travel down the alley.

That he thought the hops got into his feet.

That Jack headed the list that evening. Of course we mean in the bowling contest,

That the traveling boys take this opportunity of thanking the members of the Kegel Club for the good times and the courtsey shown them.

That Lee Austin appeared more contented and joyful on this trip. That Paul Schmidt learnt to bowl in Honolulu. That he was not brought up in an alley.

That one of the traveling men was out automobiling the other evening.

That when the driver opened her up to the highest speed, said traveling man took cold feet.

That he said they were liable to run off the island.

That Kauai was but a small isand, anyhow. That M. A. Gunst is giving away wearing apparel with Owl cigar bands. That Crane, their representative, mer on the road. That his appearance sure did make a flash when he was last on

Chicken Fanciers Visit The Garden Island

Seated around the table in one of Kauai's up-to-date hotels recently, were eight traveling men. It was the evening meal they were partaking of, and it was my pleasure to be assigned to a chair at the same table. A waiter made his appearance, bearing a tray heaped with corned beef and cabbage, and in a becomingly dignified way, proceeded to proportion this delicacy among the various members of the group. Opposite me, sat one of the boys who had just been attended by the waiter and who with a sorrowful expression on his face exclaimed. Boys, are there any chickens on this island?" "Chicken?" Came the response in a chorus as if they had been prompted-"Who said chicken." Then from a bright 'Knight' on my left: "Boys, I came near having chicken in Hanapepe yesterday for lunch." 'Liar!'' came another chorus of shouts. "Well," continued the interrupted narrator, "you see I ordered eggs, and if the cook had been a little slower on his feet, I would have had chickens."

"Say, you talk about Willie Rice being a 'chicken fancier.' I guess we all are some chicken fanciers, with the accent on the 'fanciers,' at that." Feeling that the bringing into their discussion, one of our local boys was sufficient grounds for my butting in, I presumed to remark to a member of the party who sat nearest me. "I suppose y o u boys do find it difficult at times to That delightful is not a business get just what you like to eat while on the road, particulary at some of That amongst the boys there the off-road places." "Yes," said the talkative Knight of the grip, 'and as a sample of how they hand it to us poor unfortunate roustabouts, I'll relate a little incident which happened to me on my last trip to Hawaii." "Yes, let him tell it." Again it was the chorus. "I don't know anything about it," said one of the boys, "but I'll wager a free sample package of Obak Kelley's cigarettes that he'll classy" talk, was told by the store tell it well, even if it never happened."

"As I was about to relate," said the narrator, "it was on Hawaii. I left Honokaa quite early i n the morning and on my arrival at Kukuihaele about seven o'clock, and desiring breakfast, I entered a Chinese restaurant. When the Chinese approached the table, I asked him what he had for breakast. 'Ham an' egg, no more ham." Came a quick reply accompanied with a Fairview Hotel attitude. Was it French? Was it-well, for some moments I was at a loss to know what His Celestial Majesty meant, and still feeling dubious, I told him to bring it in. What he brought me were two fried eggs. You see some one had told him that haoles liked 'ham and eggs,' for breakfast, and as he had no ham, he called it, 'ham an' egg no more ham'."

'Say, fellows,' said one of his brother drummers, "what did I tell you. Doesn't he tell it well? I was in Kukuihaele two weeks ago and do you know boys, he is dead wrong on that story as that Chinese restaurant is owned and run by a Japanese."

Traveling Men.

That it was hard to describe his apparel. That he was even cuter that Tommy O' Brien. That Frost says it is not the clothes but the man. That we hope Frost will remember this when he grows up. That Paul Schmidt says he is NOW a MAN. That last week, Obak Kelly and is therefore the best dressed drum- Sid Spitzer were the most popular men on Kauai, That all the other drummers had left the island,
